Individual receives a letter from a Law Office stating that he had been the victim of fraud within the last year and that as a result of disclosure of this information which violated a confidentiality agreement, a class action suit has been filed. As a result of the suit, a settlement has been signed and punitive damages were awarded.

They send the individual a check for to cover any court cost, ask them to contact the law office ASAP for further details and then also emphasize that there is a gag order in effect and to mention this to anyone would result in the "annulment of this verdict".
